street-car No. 8, of which George Harrington is driver, ten minutes after 9 o'clock last night, about one hundred yards north of the Mississippi and Tennessee depot, on the Main the track at the point where the children were playing. All the children ran away toward the east side, except Arthur Brown, who apparently stumbled over the pile of stone in the unfinished track on the west side, and in recovering fell on the track immedi-

A new way of defrauding the revenue and getting around the prohibitory laws recently enacted by several of the States has been dis covered at Chicago by Commissioner Raum The dearest is always the cheapest. found to contain so much laudanum to the whisky as to render it impossible that it could ever be used as an intoxicating beverage, but the stuff, as sold in Iowa, did not contain a particle of laudanum—nothing but whisky and sugar, needing only a little water to become a toddy. A similar discovery fol-lowed with another cough medicine, also

lowed with another cough medicine, also made in Chicago. As originally represented, this contained fifteen ounces of gum to a gallon of whisky, as much as the latter would hold in solution, and could not be used as a drink. But a bottle of this "medicine," found in Georgia, was discovered to contain only sweetened whisky. Upon this showing, Commissioner Raum rescinded the order admitting it as a proprietory medicine, and directed that it be treated as whisky, necessitating the procuring of a license as a liquor dealer by any one who sold it. This threw it out of temperance and local option places and ruined the ance and local option places and ruined the business. These are a few of the many devices concocted for getting liquor into the temperance States without paying taxes and licenses. There are a score of other patent medicines, bitters, etc., which consist mainly of whisky, that are similarly sold throughout

While General Cheatham was in town Saturday he remarked that he had received nunerous inquiries, by letter and in person, as to whether he would go to the meeting of the onfederates and take part in the Confede ate welcome to the Army of the Cumberland at Chattanooga in the fall. He authorized us to say that he would be glad to contribute in any way. The drought and failure of the corn crop will render his presence at home necessary. He does not intend to be left by the adverse conditions, if energy and judgment will afford relief. But he will go to Cincinnati to the meeting of Mexican sol-diers, and will be in Chattanooga on the 23d of October, the day the Confederates are to assemble, when he will be glad to take part in any way in which he can contribute to a welcome which is in accord with his entire course since the war. It is the desire of the Middle Tennessee Confederates who expect to attend that General Cheatham heir commander, and meet him in Chatta nooga. This is our own suggestion. He will be prevented by his private affairs from any active steps, but will not fail to be on hand. It really does one good who has heard the dreary lamentations about the drouth to see the old war-chief buckling as hopeful as a man ought to be, as undi mayed as when he faced Thomas and saved Hood's army at the Tennessee river, his white locks shaming disconsolates of his own of Crop—7 report crops in good condition, 8 moderately good, and 13 poor.
